

Record in the Commens Bibliography. Retrieved from <http://www.commens.org/bibliography/manuscript/peirce-charles-s-1909-essays-meaning-preface-ms-r-640>, 16.08.2024.

Type: Manuscript

Author: Peirce, Charles Sanders

Title: Essays on Meaning. Preface

Manuscript Id: MS [R] 640

Year: 1909

Abstract / Robin Catalogue:

Description: A. MS., n.p., October 22-23, 1909, pp. 1-12 (with several other pages fitting into the sequence).

The division of logic into three studies: universal grammar, critic, and methodeutic. Mill's distinction between connotation and denotation discussed. CSP's opposition to the leading schools of logic of his day that tie rationality to human consciousness by regarding human consciousness as the author of rationality. For CSP, there is no distinction more momentous than that between "is" and "would be."

The division of logic into three studies: universal grammar, critic, and methodeutic. Mill's distinction between connotation and denotation discussed. CSP's opposition to the leading schools of logic of his day that tie rationality to human consciousness by regarding human consciousness as the author of rationality. For CSP, there is no distinction more momentous than that between "is" and "would be."

Language: English